LEAGUE MEMBER BY VOTE OF 39-3

Communist Nation's 15 Years of Isolation Ended by Full Membership in Capitalistically-Controlled Organization.

DELEGATE PLEDGES EFFORTS FOR PEACE

Permanent Seat on Council Voted by 40-0; Seven Nations Refrain From DILDU Voting on Membership.

GENEVA, Sept. 18 .- (UP) -Rusbecame a member of the League of Nations tonight when an overwhelming majority of delegates voted in favor of admitting the soviet un on into this section of the family of

The League assembly met at 6:10 p. m. for this historic session and with a minimum of discussion approved a resolution that Russia be admitted to full membership, ending 15 years' isolation. The vote was 30 feets of the session of favor, three against and seven not

The nations voting "no" on Russia's entry were Switzerland, Holland and Portugal. Those who abstatined included Argentina, Belgium, Cuba, Luxembourg, Nicaragua, Peru and Venezuela. Panama and Siam were "nominally" absent, although their delegates are attending the assembly.

The assembly then voted the soviet union a permanent seat on the League council, its chief governing body, the ballot being 40 to 0. Ten delegates did not vote.

Credentials Approved.

The mext move was approval of the soviets' credentials, which was quickly disposed of, and the U. S. S. R., with its communist and anti-religious principles, was declared a full-fledged member of the capitalistically-controlled League.

Litvinoff began his maiden speech "Our entry into the League in the arly returns from today's primary into the League in the suplanation," he said. "I shall speak with frankness and moderation. We represent a new state—new in structure and supressions and satisfactions." I shall speak was "proud to be a represent a new state—new in structure and supressions. Goodyear Workers at Rockmart Pledge Loyalty children could participate in the demonstration.

Goodyear Official Met at Train by 800 Workers. Reopening Promised.

ROCKMART, Ga., Sept. 18.—Samuel A. Steere, manager of the cotton fabric division of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company, this morning arrived in Rockmart from Akron and was greeted by a great parade of workers of the Rockmart plant of his company. A crowd of more than 800 met him at the train and paraded to the athletic field at the mill. All Rockmart schools were dismissed as the procession went by so that the children could participate in the demonstration.

Spokesmen at the athletic field urged the early reopening of the plant, which employs approximately 1,100 people, and pledged loyal co-operation to that end, stating that operation of the mill would be protected against interference from outside agitators.

Every assurance was given Mr. Steere that the great majority of the employes of the mill are genuinely anxious to return to work, following their idleness caused by the shutting down of the mill because of the textile strike. It is estimated here that fully 90 per cent of the workers are loyal to the company and not in sympathy with the textile strike and the closing of the mill two weeks ago was applied to the content of the strike and the party with the texture strike and the closing of the mill two weeks ago was purely as a protective measure for the workers themselves against outside agitators and "flying squadrons."

Mr. Steere expressed his gratitude at the reception and pledged that the mill would reopen Monday morning if national guard protection is provided at that time.

Labor clearly continued to be aroused by Johnson's charges that the strike was called in violation of an agreement between himself and Thomas McMahon, president of the United Textile Workers.

News Behind the News BY PAUL MALLON.

RECHECK WASHINGTON, Sept. 18 .- Those who have peeked at that sample test poli recently conducted confi-dentially by a national magazine are passing the word around that it shows a decline in President Roosevelt's majority.

The president polled 61 per cent of the vote originally, but on the sample recheck recently he had only about 50 per cent, according to these creditable sources.

The vote will not be made public and there is considerable doubt as to its value. At any rate, those who conducted it for their own information have decided the figures do not warrant a whole new poll at this time.

These sample rechecks involve only 10,000 votes, in comparison with 1,700,000 in the general poll. Although the 10,000 names are carefully selected, there is so much room for error that definite

The word is being passed around that Mr. Morgenthau's freshman team of brain trusters is working on a definite central bank plan; that the administration will not champion the plan, but will permit it to be introduced by a democratic congressman at the coming session of congress, and slipped through.

It is an interesting story, but it does not appear to be true.

The brain trusters may have some such idea, but responsible treasury officials are proceeding along different lines. They will probably recommend to congress two modifications of the federal reserve act, one to give the board the veto power over selection of governors of various federal reserve banks, and the other to set up an open market committee within the fed-

With these two steps, the best administration authorities be-lieve they can control credit and money just as effectively as by setting up a whole new central bank.

QUIETUDE The federal troops were nearly called out in the Rhode Island strike without Acting Secretary of War Woodring knowing anything about it.

Mr. Roosevelt called War Secretary Dern, who was in Boston, and Dern got hold of Chief of Staff MacArthur. They all over-looked Mr. Woodring completely. He was in MacArthur's office when the Dern call came through, but Dern did not talk with him and switched the call to MacArthur's home.

The war department was excited. MacArthur sped to the department, hurriedly summoned a meeting of the army high command. Telephone calls went out to the commanders of the first and second corps areas. Four thousand troops were ordered to stand by. Maneuvers were canceled. Troops rushed back to bar-

Nashville Stages 13-Run Rally To Beat New Orleans, 17-11

Allows New York Six Hits: Detroit Needs Four Games.

DETROIT, Sept. 18.—(P)—For the second time in as many days the Tigers whitewashed their only remaining challengers for the American league pennant, the New York Yaukees, winning. 2 to 0, today to advance another step forward clinching the flag.

Lynwood (Schoolboy) Rowe took Lynwood (Schoolboy) Rowe took up the task where General Crowder left off yesterday and set down the Yanks with six lifts in a sparkling mound performance. The triumph put the Tigers 7 1.2 games in the van. Four more victories, regardless of how many more the Yanks win, will clinch the flag for Detroit.

It was the fifth time this season the "schoolboy" had beaten the Yanks and the second successive blanking he had inflicted.

The Old Professor Reminisces On Jump Between Camps

LEXINGTON, Ky., Sept. 18.—Patrons who have been following the football tour in this column are now spending a Sunday jump between universities and are doing the tourist spots along the Kentucky roads.

"Bittersweet," he said, "bittersweet. Will you buy some, lady?"

He said this, holding up a long pole on which hung bunches of the shrub whose berries are so bright and red and whose name is so mystical and suggestive-bittersweet. He was a ragged little colored boy and he held up his wares and the second successive blanking he had inflicted.

Hank Greenberg, the New York boy who plays first base for Detroit, accounted for the first Tiger run off Red Ruffing in the fourth inning. He broke the accreless tie by hammering his 25th home run of the season over the left field fence. Rowe drove in the other tally in the fifth. After Billy Rogell had singled and Pete Fox had sent him to second with a sacrifice, the pitcher belted a aingle to center to score the runner.

Ruffing pitched an excellent game for the Yanks but couldn't match the schoolboy. The Yankee hurler gave only seven hits and struck out five. Rowe recorded seven whiffings and didn't let a runner reach third until the hinth although the Yanks collected a trio of doubles. Neither granted a walk. The one Yankee threat resulted from a double by Red Rofle and a passed ball but he was atranded on third when Lou Gebrig filed out.

I asked the lady who is driving me if she did not think it significant that all the curious sweetness of the old days and the bitterness of the present should be symbolized by a small colored boy selling bittersweet at the gates, but she said not. It seems that bitter-sweet grows in this section and they sell it all along the road. So I was all wrong about it. They do sell

Nevertheless, I sang, in very bad voice, the words of "My Old Kentucky Home" and thought about the little colored boy and his bunches of bittersweet.

LINCOLN'S EFFICIENCY APARTMENT.

After one crosses the state line from Tennessee to Kentucky one drives quite a few miles along state and U. S. highway 31-E and finally comes to a sign which says one may turn left to the Lincoln Memorial. And if one does turn left, one comes to a parking space and gets out and climbs a long row of steps to a marble building with colonial-style columns in front, tall and cool in the shade.

And inside is the efficiency apartment wherein Abraham Lincoln was born. It is really too bad that all the dwellers in efficiency apartments cannot park their cars here and climb the steps and see the one in

They are the original logs and so the size is not changed one bit. I stepped it off the long way and it was seven paces long and it was four and a half the short way. That was all. There was no kitchenette or bath. There was just that one room chinked with mud.

Meals were cooked over the log fire. There was a bed with a feather mattress, according to the words of a visitor there when Lincoln was a baby. Nothing else.

If one cares one may walk back down the steps and turn to the right and get a drink out of the spring. The cabin was built just above it.

And if one wishes to get sentimental about it one may imagine that just where he stood perhaps Tom Lincoln stood 1 0 0 one day and gave the young Abe Lincoln a drink from a gourd

> It was a pretty steep climb up there with a bucket of water and no stone steps. And I wondered to my-self just what Tem Lincoln would have said had a neighbor found him there at the spring one day and said: "Tom, some day they will build a great marble building over that cabin of yours just because your boy

And this caused me to laugh out loud, and a fat lady tourist from lowa looked at me sharply, because she had just bent over to dip up some water and she was wearing golf knickers and she did look rather funny." But I was laughing about Tom

"I'll take a drink," he said to the bartender. "We don't sell on Sunday," he said. "Well, well, well," said the man from the hills reflectively, as he spread his hands on the bar, "Sunday will come around, won't it?" And then walked out.

Reds Win First, 2-0, But Wildness Loses

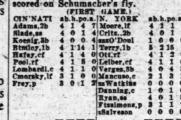

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—(P)—The Giants, still undergoing something of a batting alump, squeezed out an even break with the last-place Cincinnati Reds in a double-header today and maintained their 3 1-2 game lead over the idle Cardinals in the National leaves pennant rece. eague pennant race.

Cincinnati won the 10-inning opener, 2 to 0, when Chick Hafey's homer broke up a mound duel between Benny Frey and Fred Fitzsimmons. The Giants came back to take the afterpiece, 4 to 2, aided by the wildness of Tony Freitas and Allyn Stout.

Fitzsimmons, for whom the league leaders haven't scored a run in 31 innings, limited the Reds to six hits in the opener while Frey allowed seven. In the extra inning Jim Bottomley doubled after one was out and Hafey followed with the homer, his eighteenth of the season.

Mel Ott's thirty-fifth homer gave the Giants the lead in the fourth and they added their other runs in the sixth when three singles off Freitas loaded the bases and Stout gave two walks to force in runs, the third scored on Schumacher's fly.

By Jimmy Jones. "This is just one of many," explained the big fellow who was lying tretched out in his birthday clothes on the rubbing table at the Georgia fech training quarters when the visiting reporter dropped into Mike Chambers' elaborate emporium along about twilight of Monday.

Decatur Jackson Phillips, the Atlas who held up the Georgia Tech football team on his shoulders throughout a rigorous schedule last year, was the one who lay prone on the padded table. And it was he who spoke in the first person singular.

"It looks bad, but shucks, it's nothing," he continued, in reply to the sympathetic inquiries that were directed at him from all sides. The

There was a time when the nose of Jack Phillips was a very becoming, acquiline nose. But three years of high school at Wayneaville, N. C., two at McCallie, in Chattanooga, and three at Georgia Tech, had left its mark. In the very first game he played as a freshman at Tech in 1931, Phillips got his nose broken in a game with Monroe A. & M. It was broken several times before that and again last year

By this time some of the boys were listening in awe. Then when Jack showed them the scars of an operation on his collarbone, which was performed in the spring of his first year at Tech, they began to understand why the wheelhorse of the Jacket backfield wasn't worried by a simple little thing like a torn cartilege.

You can't beat an old firehorse like

You can't beat an old firehorse like Phillips. He was a marked man in every game he played for Tech last year simply because Tech's opponents recognized in him the body and soul of Tech's attack.

Phillips was the passer, the kicker, the leading ball carrier and the backbone of the defense. Consequently, they were instructed to "take care of Jack" as much as the ethics of the game permitted, whenever possible. Therefore Jack Phillips has had to absorb a lot of hammering.

HE CAN TAKE IT. HE CAN TAKE IT.

HE CAN TAKE IT.

But the fortunate thing about Philips is that he can dish it out as well as he can take it, as the saying goes. He rebounds fast from such injuries. He was a great football player after the operation on his splintered collarbone. And he thinks he will come back from the heel and the knee. While Trainer Chambers and newspapermen are of the opinion that the big Tarheel will be very fortunate to play in the Vanderbilt game more than two weeks hence, Phillips, himself, is more optimistic.

Therefore, don't be at all surprised to see the old fire horse answer the bell when Tech needs him. Any man who has overcome five broken ribs. In a busted collarbone and two bum knees, not to mention five broken noses, can do anything.

Except for a few seconds at the start, Endeavour held the lead throughout in a fairish breeze that measured 14 knots at the outset but measured 14 knots at the outset but eventually diminished to 9 1-2 knots. She gave another splendid exhibition of her extraordinary speed as well as a better display of seamanship, despite an accident that ultimately led to the collapse of her big Genoa jib. She piled up a comfortable margin, with much the better of the going on the first 10-mile reach, as well as the consuming windward leg, and had no difficulty standing off Rainbow's belated challenge on the closing 10-mile reach.

But it was Stafford, Rodda and Richbourg coming up—and not a Casey in the bourg coming up—and not a Casey in the bourg on Milnar's wild pitch. Rodda's single sent him to third, and another wild pitch scored him. Richbourg was safe on Boss' error and Rice doubled to score Rodda. Cuccinello singled to center, scoring Richbourg and Rice, and then took second base when the Pels tried to nip Rice at the home plate. Manager Gilbert sent Bryant to Milnar's aid.

challenge on the closing 10-mile reach.

Rainbow picked up 40 seconds on the last 10 miles but Endeavour crossed the finish line fully 300 yards in front, with a lead of 51 seconds. Both sloops were under the former America's cup record as Endeavour covered the triangular course in three hours nine minutes one second while TWO BAD KNEES.

He also revealed that he had had his right knee badly hurt in one game, not to mention his left heel, about which so much was written in the summer and the early fall.

"You see, the knee injury is now on the same side with the heel and a little rest will get them both well," Tarheel Jack said with a grin. And then everybody else around grinned, too.

You can't beat an old firehorse like

On the way to the record, Endeavour and Rainbow also eclipsed the international cup record for a 10-mile windward leg, although it wasn't a true beat today under existing sail-in the first half of the seventh when New Orleans tied the score at 3-all, knocked Byron Speece out of the box, and piled up an 8-to-3 lead. The crowd had more screaming coming to them, however, for Lance Richbourg's Volunteers turned into dervishes and whirled around the base paths with reckless abandon for 13 runs that left a question as to who was dizzier—the Vols with their running, the Pelicans with their fumbling, the slaughtered pitchers, Al Milnar, Ragland and Bryant, the hysterical 9,000 or the shell-shocked lads trying to keep box scores.

Orleans to finish what may be a five-game series.

Nashville's superiority at bat was evident today, just as the prophets had predicted, and they justified the even-money odds that preceded the game, but the highly-touted Pelican infield had a field day of muffing, and their unfortunate performance contributed much to the Vols' wild, winning seventh frame.

"You see," explained the big Tarbell, "I've had enough injuries to know how to take them by now and this one may mean good luck."

NOT AT ALL FUNNY.

Just how Jack Phillips could see any good in a mishap that might keep him from participating in the Clemson and Vanderbilt games, first on Tech's schedule, no one, particularly Mr. Chambers, could immediately understand, and Mr. Chambers has an abundance of Irish humor.

But it seems that Jack, the lineripping fullback, has had worse injuries to contend with than a torn cartilege in the left knee and kept on playing football then.

"Take my nose for instance," said Phillips, fingering a proboscis that might pass for that of Jimmy Durante or the late Bull Montans in a pinch, "it's been broken five times already."

Spencer Abbott, acting president of the Atlanta Crackers, was still in the city yesterday, awaiting outcome of the directors' decision on the 1935 setting of the ball club.

Abbott, it is understood, plans to leave for his home in Washington, D. C., as soon as the situation is ironed out and already has shipped his luggage to that city.

The directors, meanwhile, are remaining silent on the situation, realizing that all angles must be considered. Abbott has a contract as manager for next year, but since Eddie Moore has made such a good showing in that role, popular opinion is that he will retain the job.

Whether Abbott will be retained as president hinges on the decision of the directors.

Yesterday it developed that Moore, who has the Crackers on an exhibition tour, has been asked to fill in at third base on the Nashville team by Lance Richbourg in case the Vols.

THE GROUPS OF MAMMALS.

Mammals are recent arrivals on this mundame planet, yet in their brief course of evolution they have developed a most amazing array of adaptations. They creep, burrow, swim, walk, run, climb, glide and fly, a range of adaptation that cannot be matched by any other group of animals in the world today unless it be the insects.

They are so recent and fossils are so numerous that we have a much more accurate picture of their evolution and development than we have for the reptiles. Did you know, for example, that the camels and their allies, the alpacas and the llamas, had their origin in North American? So did the horses, but it was not until horses escaped from the Spanish conquistadores that wild horses roamed the American plains again, once they had disappeared. UNCLE RAY'S CORNER

"All over Cathay," wrote Marco Polo, "certain black stones are dug from the mountains. When placed in fire, they burn like wood. If set aflame in the evening, they will keep the fire all through the night."

Marco Polo in a Chinese forest. From those words, we may gather that Marco did not know about coal that Marco did not know about coal before he went to Asia; but it would be a mistake to suppose that coal had not been known to people of Europe before that date. An ancient Greek made a note about hard, rocklike objects "which are called coals and which kindle like wood;" and it appears that the Romans used coal for fuel when they held power over England.

It is interesting, however, to find that the Mongols, Tartars and other folk of Cathay (or China) were more in the custom of using coal than were the people of Europe during the middle ages.

many bridges are needed to give free passage."

In speaking of the far-roving Tartar tribes, Marco Polo says:

"They never stay long anywhere. When winter comes near, they go to the plains of a warmer region in order to find good pasture for their cattle. Their flocks and herds are large.

"Their tents are made of a framework of sticks, and are covered with felt cloth. Being exactly round and nicely put together, they can be gathered into a bundle to carry about.

"The carts of the Tartars are drawn by oxen and camels. They drink mares' milk, preparing it so that it is like white wine. For other food, they eat the flesh of horses, camels, dogs and other animals.

"The Tartars offer incense and prayers to a chief god, and also worship another god called 'Natigay.' They keep the image of Natigay in every home, and show him great respect. At their meals, they never fail to take a fat morsel of flesh and use it to grease the mouth of the idol.

Of widespread interest to a host of friends throughout the state is the announcement of the marriage of Miss Zoda Rushing to John Howard Lockhart, of Valdosta. The marriage was quietly solemnized at 9 o'clock at Druid Hills Baptist church in Atlanta on Sunday morning, September 16. Dr. Louie D. Newton performed the ceremony in the presence of the immediate family and friends.

The lovely bride entered with her father, Dr. H. P. Edmonds, by whom she was given in marriage. They were met at the altar by the bride-groom and his best man, Dr. W. L. McCarty, of Birmingham, Als.

The blond beauty of the bride was emphasized by her gown of lustrous vivry satin made along princess lines. The long, close-fitting sleeves extended in a point over the hand, and the skirt was full and formed a graceful train. Her veil of tulle was held in place by a coronet of orange blossoms. A bit of sentiment was attached to the veil, it having been worn by Mrs. E. M. McDonaid, of Jeffer-son, a friend of the bride. The bride sarried a shower bouquet of bride's roses and lilies of the valley.

Daily Stock Summary.

Dow-Jones Averages. By THE UNITED PRESS.

By FREDERICK GARDNER. NEW YORK. Sept. 18.—(P)—Stocks and United States government securities displayed symptoms of recovery today, but elsewhere financial markets continued under feverish in-Equities got back their moderata decline of the proceeding session in trading that was much less active. News of a stimulating nature was scarce and market analysis, generally, attributed the creeping recovery largely to technical factors.

Cessation of selling in some of the so-called pivotal stocks, together with stiffening of the federal loan list, encouraged those few Wall Street prophets who had been issuing faint warnings that an "oversold" condition apparently existed.

In the day's lethargic proceedings only 541.700 shares changed hands against 647.680 on Monday. The Standard Statistics Company average for 90 selected issues, however, registered a gain of 6-10 of a point, its exact loss of yesterday.

Exchange Visited.

Hardly a ripple in the market's placid surface was created by a visit of the new federal securities commission to the floor of the stock exchange.

The commission did not start out with the premise of "clamping down" on stock market operations but if any rules—which will be made as quickly as possible—are interpreted as "clamping down" the commission can do nothing about it.

This made the day a stand-off and left market opinion still in a highly confused state. Prices were firmed today but not sufficiently to have any significance. The operators continue to stay out of the market and in brokerage houses and Wall Street gathering places, it was the concensus that absence from the market will continue until the commission announces its new rulings about trading. Bearishness was relieved a little bit but was not accompanied by

COMMISSION HOPEFUL.

Joseph P. Kennedy, one-time stock market operator who heads the new commission, was chief spokesman for the visiting group and his words were the visiting group and his words were interpreted by everyone as meaning the commission was hopeful that a good market in volume might get under way. U.S.Approves Opening Of 38 National Banks

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18.—(P)—A governmen: approval stamp today was on the reorganization plans of 38 closed national banks, accounting for all but seven of the 1,407 institutions which failed to open after the 1933 banking holiday.

In the 38 banks are $52,896,000 deposits, said J. F. T. O'Connor, comptroller of currency, in making announcement last night of the approval.

The bulk of the refinancing in the 38 institutions will be done locally. O'Connor said 1,036 banks with $1,739,682,000 deposits, unlicensed at the end of the holiday, had been reorganized under old or new charters or absorbed by other national banks. Twenty-eight banks voluntarily liquidated, releasing deposits of $11,051,000; 298 were placed in receivership, with deposits of $153,055,000.

A. P. TO FURNISH LEAF QUOTATIONS

The news service furnished by the Associated Press to The Con-stitution will supply daily tone of trading on the New York Tobacco Exchange and closing quotations on important options.

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—(AP)—The securities and exchange commission swooped down upon Wall Street today and took it without a struggle. The entire commission, with several of its attaches, invaded the floor of the stock exchange for the first time. But instead of finding a howling group of ferocious bears and bulls to subdue, it found a few hundred rather bored members, many of them reading papers, doing crossword puzzles, and some playing checkers.

ruling is losing cards in which it is proper to force the dummy to ruft declarer's losing cards is almost in the commissioners, who appeared as the goests of Richard Whitney, exchange president, to study the mechanical aspects of dealings to aid in drawing up rules, had a slow-motion demonstration of trading.

The actual appearance at the exchange of the dreaded regulators—after the long years that the stock exchange has fought regulation—was scarcely an event to strike terror to traders' hearts. In fact, some floor members said they found the disarming smile of the tall, youngish, red headed Joseph P. Kennedy, commission chairman, distinctly reassuring.

AGE NINETEEN.

Answer: A poor girl can forget the man she loves but it takes heroie treatment to cure her for her love-sickness. At least she can forget him to the extent that her affection isn't active. There is always a tender spot in a woman's heart for the man she has loved and one who has loved her. But love is like a leaf on a tree that is fed by the air that surrounds it, the moisture that falls upon it, and the sun that shines on it. It is also fed by the roots of the tree that take up sustenance from the earth. Love is fed by sight and sound and imagination and memory. When a leaf can't get the air, or the moisture, or the sun, or when it is cut off from root supply it turns yellow and falls off. So when a woman puts herself where she can't see the man she loves, can't hear his voice or learn from the lips of others stories about him. she has nothing with which to feed her love but imagination and memory. Love just can't live and thrive on such a limited sustenance. It will die in spite of her wish to keep it alive.

The best thing for you to do is to go away. If you can afford a long trip, take it. If you cannot afford to travel, then try to find a position away from home. Here work, new sights, new interests will fill your thoughts in such a way that the hopeless passion you now feel for a married man will gradually lessen in intensity until it ceases to be painful. The alternative is to stay where you are, wear out your youth in agonizing over a situation that you cannot change without doing violence to your conscience, and come to maturity embittered, disillusioned, lonely. For you cannot become interested in any other man so long as you love another whom you see constantly. whom you see constantly.

Begin to Soften and Bleach Your Skin for Winter Season

light brown, dark brown and almost black women, who want to be white a gain for the winter season. I honestly don't see how some skins stand the changes they are called upon to make on short notice. I have seen some skins so dry that they looked to me as if they were leather and would require a season of hard work to bring them back to soft, feminine prettiness.

But as they will get brown and as they will get white there are some things to start doing right now if they expect to be ready for the Christmas holiday parties. Talk about fashiou being fickle—it says: "You get brown" to the summer girl, and "You get white" to the winter girl, without the slightest feeling for the worry entailed in the change.

There is a good bleaching lotion that I like very mach. You use that after cleansing cream, then when it has dried on your face or been patted gently till it is about dry, use a good server on top of that—the same massing you use for softening, whatever that may be.

Leading trade authorities said the conspicuous dearth of demand from wheat purchasers, appeared to be related to uncertainties associated with United States government refinancing operations at present under way. Likelihood of some increase of demeatic winter wheat acreage for the 1935 crop acted also as a weight on the market.

Mrs. J. H. Adams announces the marriage of her daughter, Miss Athello Ann Adams, to Jerome Elliott Crumbley, the ceremony having been solemnized on Friday, September 14.

The bride had as her only attendant, Miss Hazel Lambert, who was modishly gowned in brown, with brown accessories. She wore a shoulder spray of talisman roses.

The brunet beauty of the bride was enhanced by her striking ensemble of navy blue triple sheer crepe, fashioned with a deep white satin bertha. Her hat and accessories were also of blue and she wore a shoulder spray of sweetheart roses and snapdragons.

The bridegroom chose for his best man Bill Waller.

Mr. and Mrs. Crumbley are residing at 941 Lee street; S. W.

TARZAN AND THE LION MAN No. 3

Orman hastily strengthened the guard to ward off another surprise attack by the hostil Basutos. Bill West and a companion were assigned to ride with the girls, and two askaris were placed on the running boards. "Where's Obroski?" Orman asked when he was ready to start. "Here he comes Stanley Obroski, marathon ex-champion, came to-ward them. In Orman's picture he was to play the Lion Man who, born in the jungle and brought up by a lioness, becomes the king of the lions. "Where are those Basutos?" he asked breathlessly. "I been looking for them." Bill West's grin ex-pressed his doubts.

Soon the great safari wound its way into the forest and came at last to a wide river where Orman chose a camp site. Naomi Madison sat down beside him, darting fearful glances into the weird jungle. "Aw, Tom," the said. "If you loved me, you'd take me out of here. I know I'm going to die. Let's go back. We'll all be killed!"

growled, turning to his ever-present bottle of whisky. Naomi pouted. "You know I don't care anything about him. There isn't anyone but . . ."
She was halted by a fusillade at the rear of the

"Go tell your troubles to your Lion Man," he column. Was her prediction coming true? Was this attack to wipe them all out?

The man quirked his head, birdlike. The man quirked his head, birdlike. His glance narrowed speculatively as it roved around the modest prospect. "You look just like my own mother would look," he suggested cautiously, "only I ain't seen her in a dog's age. I been away—so long. I guess I lost track—somehow—." Her thin hand twitched in her lap, a suggestive gesture, and he looked away from the tremulous eagerness in her face. "I'm hungry!" The quality of his voice somehow belied the whine. "I been ig was a huge bunch of tresh, dew-kissed flowers—side flowers—side around it of the bedside and laid his offer-frankie," he whispered huskily. "He couldn't come—but he bought you flowers, like he promised. He asked me to kiss you for him—"

He bent and touched his lips to her cold forehead and flinched at the look of ineffable joy in her dimesored." "Like he promised." she whispered."

Her eyes dimmed. "If you'll help me into the kitchen I'll show you where the food is. Pa's working late tonight and I guess I'm a bit chilled."

It was then that he saw that she was almost helplessly paralyzed.

An hour later they were sitting in the little living room. The man had eaten ravenously and now he was getting restless. He wished she would get through telling him about "Frankie." get thro "Frankie."

By FORREST BEAL.

To the half-dozen women who had already slammed as many doors in his face he was just another hobo. But to the old lady sitting alone on the wisp of porch jutting from the seventh house along the dirty street he was a revelation.

He stood, hesitant, one foot on the lopsided step, twisting a shapeless blotch of felt in gaunt fingers. He saw the old lady peering down at him, trancelike, her faded eyes alight with hope. His own eyes, gray, and sunsen, flashed a half-masked gleam of interest.

"I—I thought for a minute you me flowers—just like I was a lady.

"II buy you flowers, mum, just the same.' And he will, too. Frankie always kept his promises. I'm just waiting—every day. Seems to give me something to live for—"

She seemed to be sleeping and he scowled at her. Somehow he wished that she weren't so helpless. It made things too easy. Finally, with a deep scowl on his lean face he flipped the coin in his pocket and stole out of the room.

A week later and the little old lady be withered.

still slept between minutes of wide-eyed, eager, waitfulness. "He prom-ised to buy me flowers." her lips framed the words feebly. The gaunt, gray man at her bedside looked away and shuffled his grimy hands helplessly.

"You just keep on waiting, ma," he whispered, hoarsely. "Frankie'll come home—an' he'll bring you flowers like he promised." But his eyes were bleak and helpless.

Dusk came. The doctor looked away from the bedside with a lump in his throat. "It's a pity miracles don't happen," he muttered. happen," he muttered.

Quick, eager steps coming through, interrupted his thought. A tall man, breathless, with lean face and deep-set gray eyes, stood in the doorway. Making a crimson blotch against the soiled, dusty background of his clothing was a huge bunch of fresh, dew-kissed flowers—look of ineffable joy in her dimeyes.

"Like he promised," she whispered, "Frankie never broke his promise—"
The gray-eyed man walked slowly from the room. On the little porch a perspiring officer turned alertly and linked arms with his prisoner.

"Stealing flowers!" he complained.
"What next won't you birds be up to?
Come along now—uo more fooling!"
The gray-eyed man fell in step, lightly. "No more fooling!" he promised, firmly.

COACHWHIP OUTFIGHTS RATTLER AT VALDOSTA

RATTLER AT VALDOSTA

VALDOSTA, Ga... Sept. 18.— A number of persons yesterday afternoon witnessed the defeat of a ground rattlesnake by a coachwhip on the highway near the county convict camp. The rattler was about two and a half feet long and the coachwhip was nearly ix feet in length, quick, and sinewy. The two snakes were crossing the highway from opposite directions and met about the center, when the coachwhip caught and attacked the rattler, the latter making desperate efforts to turn and flee, but it was not quick enough for the swift movements of the adversary. The meeting was witnessed by a Valdostan, who stopped his automobile to see the result. In a few moments an audience of perhaps 50 persons had been attracted to the scene and watched with interest the struggle.

Getting hold on the rattler the coachwhip began to swallow its enorgic relations with Cuba, the

Getting hold on the rattler the coachwhip began to swallow its enormous foe, and this continued slowly but surely. When all but about a fourth of the rattler had been swallowed the coachwhip evidently became self-conscious and decided to shake the sudience so with the remainder of Murphy asserted the tax problem is one of the most difficult facing the city. He said something must be done to relieve taxes, but that other revenues must be found. worth more than twice the amount of the outstanding bonded indebted ness.

City's Deficiency.

"The deficiency of the city is estimated to be in excess of $1,500,000. Considered from the standpoint of cash the deficiency of the city in all probability will be in excess of $2,500,000 because the city by the end of the year will probably owe this amount which it cannot pay. In my judgment the sole cause of this situation is the lack of efficient administration resulting from constant bickering and discord.

"The people have paid enough taxes but proper management has been lacking. It is clear that this great deficiency is not only destroying the efficiency of the services rendered by the various departments. No one would suggest that the loyal employes of this city should be required to pay this deficiency which has accumulated over a number of years.

That would not be fair, and so far as I am concerned, it shall not be unloaded upon them."
